Foreword

Not only to chronicle the events of the year, but also to reflect the spirit of a great university, exemplified better, perhaps, during the past year than ever before, has been the object of our efforts in the building of this book.

The degree of success to which these efforts have attained will be determined by the length of time that the Nineteen Twenty-four Cincinnati remains a cherished memento of days that are gone.

F. C. HICKS, A. B., Ph. D.
President of the University

IT is with deep gratitude for their loyal support that I extend this greeting to the student body. We cannot too often remind ourselves of the fact that the good name of the University depends upon the degree to which we succeed in maintaining high standards of scholarship, of sportsmanship, and of comradeship. To this end we must cherish high ideals and strive unceasingly and unfalteringly for their attainment.

All this we owe to the City of Cincinnati which so generously opens to us these opportunities, and to ourselves, for only as we so "carry on" shall we realize in full measure the possibilities of our manhood and womanhood.

Fred C. Hicks

F. W. CHANDLER, A B., A M., Ph. D.
Dean of the College of Liberal Arts

A COLLEGE of liberal arts is an essential part of every university in this country, and it is out of such colleges that the universities as a rule have grown. Whereas the professional schools train for specific occupations and the graduate school seeks to encourage original investigation, the liberal college is concerned with affording that general training which is fundamental to culture. The liberal college aims to afford a survey of principles in the chief departments of knowledge, a more intimate acquaintance with at least one of these departments, and, most important of all, a disciplined mind and developed personality. Its gift to the student is not technical skill nor mere information, but rather incentive and guidance in realizing his best possibilities and attaining a grasp upon the meaning of life.

MONEY is not wealth. There was probably as much money in Russia as in America, but there was no wealth of free schools, free speech, good social systems, bathtubs, and soap. When a worker owns his own home, with a bathtub and hot water; when his children go to high school; when he can afford a flivver to go out in the country on Sunday; that worker will just grin at pink piffle.

Schools and houses and bathtubs and flivvers cost money. They come from the excess of wealth above that needed for the sheer necessities of bare living. The greater this excess, the more schools and comforts and time to enjoy them.

More wealth comes, the more we eliminate waste and devise better mechanisms to produce more at less cost. That is engineering.

An archaic machine or an archaic social system is wasteful—wasteful of human hours and human opportunities.

Education which does not put into men's minds the will and power to devise better machines, fairer labor systems and more clear-cut distinctions of right and wrong, is as wasteful as an archaic plow.

Germicidal soap does not stir the moony-minded to ecstatic writhing, as lots of opiated philosophies do; but it is better engineering.

ONE hundred words—scarcely enough to extend congratulations to the student body on its opportunity to be an active unit in one of the great and forward-looking universities of the world; wholly inadequate to describe in the least detail the extensive steps of reorganization taken during the year by the College of Education in order that the professional training program for teachers may become second to none; quite inadequate to express the interest of my colleagues and myself in such of you as desire to enter the teaching profession.

Dean of the Graduate School

YOU, Mr. Editor, have urged me to give your classmates a parting word which may live with them in future years. The best I can do is to remind them that they have had, during four years, the privilege of learning the great legacies from the past in both letters and sciences. Recollect this experience as frequently as possible in order to enjoy the happiness of a full life and, from a knowledge of the success or failure of other times, to perfect a sound judgment in meeting the problems of the future.

While most of you will not enter the Graduate School, yet it has unobtrusively been responsible for the scholarship which you have enjoyed. It is told of Saint Antony of Padua that he became a great leader of thought and conduct by first retiring into the desert; men, observing his disregard of ordinary affairs, out of curiosity followed him to his retreat in great numbers that they might learn of his power of self-control; so scholarship, as a true guide to life, should be sought for and ought not to seek men that they may discover its rewards.

Louis T More

H. PAGE, A. B., A. M., M. D.
Dean of the College of Medicine

A PERSON who has graduated from a college is said to have been educated, but this by no means implies that the person who has been educated has improved his condition. This fact is responsible for much discussion as to whether or not "it pays" to go to college.

We have become so accustomed to reckon values in terms of legal tender that this debate largely centers around an investigation of the increased earning capacity given to one by a college education. Without in any way depreciating the value of an increased earning capacity, I believe that sooner or later every really successful person begins to realize that cash values are far less important than values expressed in terms of the satisfaction and contentment that comes to the useful citizen.

If a college education has enabled you to discover how to be useful and to live happily with your neighbors, it has done far more for you than if it has taught you only certain easy methods of making money, which can, per se, bring happiness to no one.

This is particularly true of the student of medicine. The successful man in the medical profession is the one who is happy, and in spite of what may seem to be evidence to the contrary, the happiest man in medicine is the one who feels that he has deserved and has gained the largest measure of gratitude from his patients.

The happiest man I have ever known is the celebrated Dr. W. W. Keem of Philadelphia, who in a recent letter exclaims, "How richly God has blessed me with friends!" This noble old gentle-man is not wealthy, but I think he has in his service to others stored up riches far more valuable than all of the reputed millions of a celebrated quack of electric vibrator ill-fame and who has served no one but himself. Education to the former has brought happiness; to the latter infamy and cash.

My message, therefore, to the students of this university is that education carries with it an obligation to gain happiness in public service, and if you fail to acquire this viewpoint it is far better for you, as well as for the rest of us, that you should remain uneducated.

A. B. BENEDICT, A. M., LL.B.
Dean of the College of Law

THE College of Law undertakes not merely to teach the law as that body of rules, designed to establish justice, which are administered in our courts, but also as a method of legal reasoning, by which those rules and the principles upon which they are founded came into being, and by which they can be applied to the solution of the various and multitudinous problems that arise between individuals and groups living in society, and by which they can be applied also to new conditions and situations as society develops. That the common law of the English-speaking peoples is a system, a body of rules and principles, and a method ever-expanding to meet the wants of an advancing civilization, is its chief claim to distinction from other systems of jurisprudence. The kind of study of the law that is taught in our college fits the student not merely to be a practitioner, but also to discharge the higher duties of citizenship and of leadership that naturally fall to the lot of the lawyer.

Alfred B. Benedict

H. T. SMITH, D. D. S.,
Dean of the Ohio College of Dental
Surgery

THE Ohio College of Dental Surgery, affiliated Dental Department of the University of Cincinnati, was established in Cincinnati in 1845 and is now the oldest dental school in the world. Its graduates number about three thousand and are among the pioneer practitioners and teachers in every state and country. The four years course of study leads to the degree of D. D. S., with a pre-dental year requirement covering University English, Biology, Physics, and Chemistry. The average attendance is fifty students in each of the four classes. The Clinic and Technic Departments occupy at present the former Pulte Medical College Building at Seventh and Mound Streets, the Infirmary treating about one hundred patients daily, with an out-patient service covering the public schools, four hospitals, and ten eleemosynary institutions. Two resident dental internships are offered at the General Hospital. The school is co-educational, having in 1865 conferred the degree upon the first woman graduated in dentistry. In 1910, it offered the first course established for Dental Assistants and Nurses.

Dentistry offers unusual opportunities as a vocation. Its close association with Medicine is attracting research students in the common problems of Health Service, particularly in the fields of prevention, surgery, border-line pathology, dental metallurgy, and mechanics.

Henry T. Smith, D.D.S.

JOSEPHINE P. SIMRALL, B. S.
Dean of Women

STATISTICS tell us that over 72% of those whose names are listed in "Who's Who in America" are college-trained men and women. This means that the world is depending increasingly upon the university and college groups for leadership.

Now, preparation for leadership is not to be acquired merely by academic disciplines. These, in a university, are of primary importance, but a leader is more than just a learned person. A leader must have many points of contact with life; he must know how to deal intelligently with his fellowmen; he must have learned through experience to make the necessary adjustments to life; he must have enthusiasm, an understanding of real values, and a clear vision of the eternal verities. So the work of our university consists not only in stimulating the intellectual powers of our students, but also, through the campus activities and the responsibilities which direct participation in campus life involves; through social intercourse; through the inspiration which comes from association with vivid and vigorous personalities, in developing the kind of men and women who will be ready to play their parts intelligently and effectively in the life of the community, and to think through and work through some of the great national and international problems which are so confusing and perplexing the world of today.

SOME four or more years ago the Class of 1924 began its university life. Now, as Seniors, we can proudly claim partial responsibility for our increased enrollment, our winning athletic teams, and the inception of a more zealous and lasting school spirit. And now as our class fades from active participation and becomes an alumnal group, it is our sincerest wish that our efforts may have been to some avail, materializing through future classes our hopes for the betterment and progress of Varsity.

O THE Freshman, the verdant tie, the racy checks; to the Sophomore, the symphonic scarf, the sensuous folds of soft-hung tweeds; to the Senior, the Cap and Gown; but to the Junior, dedicate! O Weaver, the graceful dress of evening, the sheeny, cheek-soothing lapel.

For the Freshman, the rolling drum, the chuckling trombone; for the Sophomore, the clarinetic wail, piercing plaintively the low smother of night; for the Senior, the clear note of the silver Trumpet of Fame; but for the Junior, play! O Minstrel, the throbbing melody of Life. Breath into it the spirit of thy Sire, thy glory, and the beauty of the Minuet, ancient model of our Promenade; let thy song lift up the souls of courtly men and fair damsels, as did his in days of old.

Not the least of the student body are we, the Juniors. The Senior represents the head, the intellectual temple, the contemplative brow; we are the strength and the grace; we are the brilliant scholars, hard-fighting athletes, beautiful women; we are the backbone of the school.

THE Sophomore Class, with fellowship and Varsity spirit as its ideals, has endeavored to establish a stronger bond of friendship, and to instill into the hearts of the Sophomores, and indirectly the student body, a keener sense of loyalty and interest for U. C. Although, as yet, we have not made our presence felt to a very great extent, we sincerely hope that in 1926 the University of Cincinnati may have been bettered to some slight degree for our having existed.

OF the Freshmen Class there is little to be said, for it is much better that we should speak, not of the little we have been able to do for our Alma Mater during the past year, but of all we hope and intend to do for her in the years to come, not only while we are in college, but afterward, when we shall carry her stamp of approval, our diploma, out into the world with us. We may only pledge ourselves always to speak and act in such a manner as befits the men and women of U. C., and to bring more honors to her name in every way, for in the fulfillment of such a pledge lies the attainment of all the ideals of true manhood and womanhood.

ATHLETICS

Boyd B. Chambers

THE University of Cincinnati believes in strong athletic teams, for many reasons. Chief among these is the knowledge that good teams do more to instill loyalty and college spirit in students and alumni than any other one thing. A university depends upon the loyalty of students and alumni for growth, not in numbers alone, but in the quality of its work in all lines.

Another important reason for good intercollegiate teams is that they provide funds for equipment and instruction in athletics for the general student body. With these things in view, the temptation is great to seek the very best athletes in the high schools. The plan adopted here years ago, however, to make athletics out of students rather than students out of athletics has been strictly adhered to; consequently the development of winning teams has been discouragingly slow at times, but the steady growth of athletics in all respects has now justified those in charge for the stand taken. While the present teams are far from being remarkable, there has been each year a noticeable improvement in their playing.

Two alibis, used consistently until recent years, are now out of date. One, that the faculty was opposed to athletics, has been disproved by the hearty co-operation between the faculty and the department of athletics. The other, that the co-operative method of instruction in the Engineering College interfered seriously with the proper time for practice, has become obsolete through more careful planning of work periods for athletics by those in charge of student employment in the Engineering College.

To enable the Committee on Athletics fully to realize its aims, larger gate receipts are necessary. The past year showed receipts ten times greater than those of six years ago, but they are not yet adequate for the plans of the Committee. While much is said against commercializing intercollegiate sport, the fact remains that it is the intercollegiate contests, football in particular, that make possible the most desirable things in a student's life—full participation in all activities. It was proved conclusively last year that a winning football team would bring the desired increase in gate receipts.

In 1924, this University will be better equipped for athletics than any other institution in Ohio. The new James Gamble Nippert Memorial Stadium will be ready by fall. James N. Gamble is the donor of the new stadium as a memorial to his grandson, James Gamble Nippert, who died on Christmas day of an injury received in the final game of the season, on Thanksgiving day. This stadium will accommodate 12,000 people, whereas the present stands have seats for 5000. It will be fitted out with dressing rooms and training quarters for taking care of athletes, and will be superior to anything in this part of the country. The increased receipts from these additional stands should make it possible to equip auxiliary playfields for the practice of Varsity teams and for holding intramural contests. This will give the University the same facilities for conducting outdoor games as are now available for indoor sports in the men's gymnasium.

This fine material equipment brings us nearer to the day when each student will be given competent instruction in games for which he is physically fit—the dream of every department of athletics.

THE Cincinnati "C" Club, composed of all men who have won letters in Varsity athletics, was formed in 1916. At that time the privileges of joining the club were extended to all former letter men. The purpose of the club is the promotion of a high standard of athletics at the University. It offers a medal for the athlete ranking highest scholastically. This medal was won for last year by Harry Hachen.

Football Review

ALL hail, McLaren! For it is to Coach George W. McLaren that Varsity owes the most successful football team it has had during the last fifteen years. Finishing high in the Conference with five victories and but two defeats, the Red and Black made the season wholly successful by sweeping over the Big Red team in a driving rain to a 23-0 triumph. The entire season, which included games with Kentucky Wesleyan and Kentucky State, was most successful, as six wins were chalked up out of nine games.

The first game of the season, on September twenty-ninth, proved to be a novelty both for the spectators and for the players. In the first place, the fray was put on at night, although it could hardly be realized with the thirty-eight searchlights trained on the field and with the ghost ball in use. Though no match for the Bearcats, who showed the drive which was later to make them the most feared team in the Conference, the southerners were considerably stronger than the aggregation which represented their school two years ago, but this year's score, 17-0, showed for Cincinnati a margin of superiority in play which was to characterize most of the following games.

The Kentucky State game, on October sixth, saw the Bearcats outweighed by more than a few pounds to the man, but also saw the Wildeats outplayed. The Kentuckians displayed a good brand of football, and by taking advantage of the breaks which came their way were able to turn in a victory over Varsity to the tune of 14-0, although the result was at all times in doubt. The game, however, was marred by the injury and subsequent death of Price McLean, the crack center of the Kentucky team, who died of a fractured skull the following day.

As usual, the Denison jinx worked overtime, and the local rooters at Granville on October thirteenth went delirious with joy as they watched their prides and joys take Varsity into camp with a 24-7 score. Denison didn't have much with which to defeat U. C., but it wouldn't have taken much to lick the Bearcats as they misplayed that day. This game was the one total let-up of the year for Varsity; for Coach McLaren's heavy hand came down hard, and from then on a vast improvement could be noticed.

The first Conference victory of the year came at Athens on October twentieth, when the U. C. team, accompanied by numerous rooters, defeated Ohio 13-0. For the first three quarters, things looked black for Varsity, with Ohio leading by six points, but in the fourth period the old steam roller got into action, and Varsity's powerful backfield, aided and abetted by some good line play, rolled up thirteen points while holding Ohio to nothing.

What was probably the best game played by Cincinnati all year was that against Wooster at Carson Field on Civic Day, October twenty-seventh. That the Bearcats lost 20-7 was more than a little offset by the fact that they outgained and outplayed the Conference champions in fine style, and, but for unlucky breaks—as the Wooster coach admitted—would at least have tied the score. Varsity put up a mighty game fight, threatening the Wooster goal no less than five times, and rolling up a yardage three times as great as that which Wooster could gain. This was the last defeat for the Red and Black for the year.

Maddened by this loss, the Bearcats made their next trip successful, when they bested the strong Oberlin team 0-0 on November third at Oberlin. This game showed up Varsity to advantage when it stood off the powerful up-state attack, as it threatened the Red and Black goal after the first score.

The work of Kerschner at half nearly turned the Ohio Northern game into a defeat for Varsity, with the long accurate forward passing which he displayed on November tenth. But the debut of Bobby Hynes more than turned the trick for the Red and Black, which came out on the long end of a 15-7 score. As defensive quarter, Hynes blocked and intercepted many long passes which otherwise would have gone for touchdowns. On the offense, he showed promise of the brilliant play which later was to make him famous.

The largest score of the local season was made against Case School of Applied Science which showed here on November seventeenth. A total of 69 points was run up against the Scientists while they were unable to chalk up a single marker. Bachman, by making good on nine consecutive goals out of ten tries, established a record which should last some time. Splendid line play made it possible for the backfield, particularly Hynes, to make long gains almost at will.

The glorious finish to the whole season came on Thanksgiving Day when U. C. triumphed over Miami 23-0 in a sea of mud and during a driving rain. Most of the joy of victory for Varsity rooters was dispelled later by the death of James Gamble Nippert, crack center on the Red and Black team, which was caused by an injury received during the game. His playing was one of the main reasons for Varsity's success, his indomitable courage was an example and inspiration to the other men on the team, and his character, with his love of fair play, was an ideal which will long be cherished by men on the teams to come. Only eleven men were used in the game, but these were so good that while Varsity was running up 23 large points, Miami was stopped to practically nothing. The Red and Black was at its best; on the attack, the line and backfield swept forward with machine-like precision and invincibility; on the defense, the whole team functioned in a manner which was a tribute to McLaren's methods.

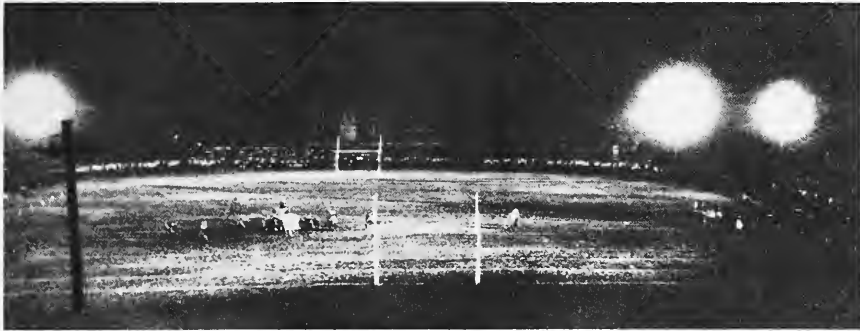

The play of the year was characterized by a union of function which makes it hard to select any few men as stars, inasmuch as those who did enter the limelight were enabled to do so through the work of the others. The terrific line plunging, however, of "Tank" Fratz put him in a class by himself at the outset, and he remained there until, at the end of the season, he was accorded all-state honors. Captain Red Prather, by virtue of his splendid work at end, both on the offense and defense, was similarly honored and was rightly declared one of the crack ends of this part of the country. Not far behind these two in spirit and ability were two linemen, Charley Glasgow and Bill Bradford, who played hard and well in every game. Captain-elect McAndrews was more than a tower on the offense—he was a whole building; and when Bobby Hynes joined the trio of Fratz, McAndrews and Hynes, Inc., Cincinnati had a backfield that compared more than favorably with the best in the state.

The work of Jimmie Nippert at center was always characterized by that fighting spirit, clean sportsmanship, and skill that made him the most-loved player on the team. Russ Glasgow at quarter showed great improvement over last year's game, and to his heavy directing goes the credit for not a few of Varsity's favorable scores. Bachman at end was one of the highest scorers Varsity had, due mainly to his uncanny skill at booting goals.

Runt Bradner, who alternated with Glasgow at quarter, showed great promise for next year, besides playing good football for the Red and Black this year. The work of Lease at guard was a pleasure to watch, and was one of the main cogs in the defense. The same can be said of Perin, who played the hardest game at tackle seen around here in quite a while. Of the first string substitutes, Wolfson and Bowen deserve first mention for the faithful service they have given throughout their college careers. Bauer's work at full gave promise of a man who next year will be able perhaps to fill even the great gap left by "Tank". Maddux and Bradford, substitute halves, showed well when they played, and look to be the best bets for a first crack at those positions for next year. George Noble and Clark Valentiner stand in much the same light, and are among the main reasons why Coach McLaren hopes to be able next year to duplicate the most successful season U. C. has had in years.

Basketball

Boyd B. Chambers

At the beginning of the 1923-24 basketball season, Coach Chambers faced what appeared to be an impossible season, with only a few of last year's men around whom to build a team. The future looked dark for the Bearcats, as most of the recruits were greatly lacking in beef and experience. Indeed, the Cincinnati mentor remarked that he was afraid to take his new squad out on a rough floor, for fear that several of them might fall through the cracks.

But Coach Chambers has the knack of developing good players from green stock—past records make this ability clear—and his striplings surprised the Conference by finishing above the .700 mark.

Three pre-Conference games were played, the first on December fifteenth with the Portsmouth Selects, who, although highly-touted, fell to the melody of 19-16. The other two preliminary games, with Michigan and Yale, did not go so well, Varsity losing each, 25-14 and 38-21 being the respective scores.

The Conference season was started with a bang when the Bearcats, looked upon by opponents as easy meat, scalped Kenyon 21-20 on January fourth, paving the way for an unbroken string of six victories. Journeying to Wooster, the Cincinnatians the next night upset all dope by trouncing the supposedly strong upstate five by a 24-7 score.

After this game, the rest of the Conference sat up and took notice; to them it was like seeing a three-year-old Indian papoose hit the warpath and return with the curly locks of a Daniel Boone. All traditions were broken when the Bearcats triumphed over the Big Red at Denison 26-20. Such a victory was enough to make old Charles McMicken rise from his grave and shout, "Yow, Bearcats!" If the stories of old-timers may be trusted, this is the first defeat the Denisonians have suffered on their own floor for many years.

Wittenberg was next visited on January eighteenth, and the Springfield lads were unable to stop their opponents. Although the score was somewhat one-sided, 35-21, Wittenberg put up a strong opposition. The Bearcats next appeared at home, winning from Muskingum, 24-10. The New Concord outfit was expected to put up a better fight than it did.

The Bearcats hit an obstruction in their fast pace in the form of Otterbein, but although almost falling, Chambers' men caught themselves, coming out to the good, 23-19. Coach points to this game as the hardest his team had fought up to the second Denison tilt.

But all things must change, and the winning streak of the Cincinnatians was checked by Ohio University, which, on January twenty-sixth, visited the men's gym to trim the lamps of the Bearcats, 18-21. The strong Athens five was almost invulnerable, and local basketball followers were forced to go home in mourning.

On February ninth, the Wittenberg team again fell before the Bearcat onslaught, this time to the tune of 27-19. The Springfelders fought hard to even up old scores, but the local five uncorked a style of play that completely checked the visitors.

This game was sandwiched in between two non-Conference tilts, the first with the Alumni, the second with the University of Virginia, both in the local gym. The Alumni team, made up of former stars on the hardwood, took the measure of their opponents 24-20. The Virginians, appearing here at the close of a successful western trip, triumphed over the locals 31 to 27, but with a minute more of play, the results might have been far different.

Then within eight days came the three hardest games of the season, each of which, sad to relate, ended disastrously for the Cincinnatians. The Akron team, reputed at the start of the season to be the strongest in the Conference, upheld its reputation in the men's gym on February twenty-first, when the Rubber City lads let the air out of Varsity's tires in a 25-29 tilt. Two days later, the Bearcats appeared at Athens, fully expecting to avenge the defeat given by Ohio University on the local court. But the Cirey floor pounders fell hard before the superior play of the home team; in the second half the Red and Black guards eased up a bit, and before they could regain the ball, the Athenians had the game cinched, winning 24-13. The last defeat came five days later when the big Denison outfit got Varsity's goat, 27-16. The lighter Bearcats held the visitors until the second period, when they gave way before superior strength.

The Conference tail-enders, Otterbein, next appeared on the Cincinnati court. The Westerville five was sent home limping by Chambers' men, who trimmed the visitors 37-17. The big game of the season, on March eighth, when more than 600 loyal Cincinnatians migrated to Oxford, was won from Miami 28-21. The Red and White outfit, starting off with a rush, evidently expected to snow under their visitors.

Captain Hoy

Captain-elect Hachen

Basketball

but the latter soon had the good citizens of the village trembling when they saw that a victory was not for them that night. All Varsity defeats were forgotten in the joy of having triumphed over Miami.

Then to make "thi' assurance doubly sure", the most exciting game of the year was taken by main force from Miami in the closing fray of the season in a nip and tuck battle which see-sawed to a finish with the fighting Bearcats on the long end of a 27-25 count. The game was royally fought throughout, many of the spectators offering to come down and make it interesting for the opposing team, and was a real conclusion to a season which ranks as one of the most successful we ever had here.

Such a glorious finish was only to be expected from the team which rang up six Conference victories before a single defeat could be recorded against it. For the larger part of the season, the team, light and small as it was, was regarded as one of the most serious contenders for the title. But the long, hard schedule and the fast pace set by the Red and Black wearers proved too much for them in time, and four games were dropped after hard fighting. Prospects for next year are even brighter, however, for all but Captain Hoy are expected to take part again under the able leadership of Captain-elect Harry Hachen, who played such stellar ball all season. The remarkable development of this year's team under Coach Chambers' tutelage promises auspicious doings for next year, for besides having six first string men eligible, Varsity has several strong candidates from the Freshmen squad coming up.

Hoy

Carson Hoy, one of the best forwards in the Ohio Conference, was also one of the most closely guarded by all the teams the Bearcats hooked with. But despite this fact, Captain Carson managed to rank sixth in the list of high scorers and secured a place on the second All-Ohio team.

Hachen

Captain-elect Hachen played a most consistent game of a sterling quality all year, and the strength which he added to the team-work of the group was well shown when he was forced out of the game one or two times for personal fouls or some other reason.

Klein

Klein was one of the flashiest players seen on any team here for a long time. His floor work was a pleasure to witness at all times, and he is expected next year to be one of the main cogs in both the offense and defense.

In the Fray

Valentiner

Clarkie Valentiner at center showed an improvement at his position which made him at the close of the season one of the redoubtable players of the Conference. His floor work and shooting developed to such an extent that much of the offense was built with him as the main factor.

Schmid

Wes Schmid, from the form that he displayed this year, looks to be one of Varsity's best bets for a forward position. Though playing his first year for Varsity, he showed a technique worthy of a more experienced player.

Sicking

Practically the same thing may be said of Sicking, who alternated with Schmid at forward. With two men of Sicking's calibre on tap, the forward position will be well attended to, despite the loss of Captain Hoy.

In the Fray

Maddux

George Bradner, hailed familiarly as "Runt", did not have much opportunity to show his wares this season on account of the strong competition of the regulars, but his ability to step right in and play good ball when the occasion demanded was no small feature in the season's play. His quality is indicated by the fact that Coach thought him good enough to wear the "C".

Maddux was another man upon whom Coach depended when it was necessary to send in a good man to take a good man's place. Though he did not play quite enough to rate a letter, he looks like a fine candidate for next year's team.

Track

ALTHOUGH the Varsity Track Team did not have the most successful year in the history of the institution during 1923-24, it did go far towards mastering the new methods of training inaugurated by Coach McLaren in his first year as mentor. This was no little task, considering that these methods differed radically from those in force before. Suffice it to say that at the end of the season, the Bearcats were considered real opposition by their opponents and represented a degree of improvement which was more than noticeable. The bare records show little of this improvement, for Varsity was unable to carry off the honors in any meet. On numerous occasions, however, they came close to doing so, only two points separating them from victory in the meet with Georgetown College at Georgetown, Kentucky. Rarely was their opponents' margin of victory more than ten points. The result was that all the meets were hotly contested and were often in doubt up to the very last event. The prospects for this year look quite bright with the McLaren regime well established, a good bunch of veterans on hand and eager to recoup last year's losses, and a promising group of candidates from last year's Frosh team. A schedule has been arranged which will test the new Bearcats thoroughly. On account of the building of the stadium, however, the home meets will be conducted at the East High Track.

Cross Country

UNDER the direction of Coach O. M. Nikoloff, a Varsity cross country team was materialized out of nothing but a handful of green material. There was no one whom he could use as a strong nucleus for the team, and consequently when the team journeyed to Pittsburg on November third for a triangular meet with Lehigh University and Carnegie Tech., he was not unpleasantly surprised in its defeat in the face of such strong opposition. The final score stood Lehigh 28, Carnegie 39 and U. C. 49. The following week the team ran against Kentucky State in a dual meet and lost by three points. Aneshansel was sick at the time and the team was thus deprived of the services of one of its best men. In the Big Six Cross Country meet on November seventeenth, Cincinnati finished fourth. Oberlin won with 17 points, her first man completing the four miles in 22 minutes and 13 seconds. Ohio Wesleyan was second with 28 points, Denison third with 47, Cincinnati fourth with 57, Miami bringing up the rear with 85. The 1924 season will probably bear a different tale, for there will be experienced material with which to start the team on its road to victory. The sport is one of the most recent in this institution, but at its present rate of development it will not be long until it holds a position similar to that which it holds in Eastern colleges.

Baseball

Ed. Roth, Captain, 1923

AS usual the Red and Black, in response to Coach Chambers' skillful handling, put out a baseball team superior to those in Conference circles, and managed last year, for the third time in five years, to go through the season without suffering a single defeat. The schedule this year contained nineteen games, but of these, seven were cancelled on account of inclement weather. Some of these, however, were played off later.

Of the total number of games on tap at the first crack of the horsehide, the Red and Black came through with victories in no less than ten contests. Four games were dropped, but none of them to Conference teams. Two amateur teams, the C. M. & L's and the Alumni, were able to put it over on the Bearcats. Ohio State was the only college team which could register on the favorable side of the ledger; they managed to accomplish this twice.

The greatest victory of the year was Cincinnati's triumph, on April sixteenth, over the strong University of Michigan nine, which later copped the Big Ten honors. Other interesting contests were those with Kentucky State and Center, both of which resulted in victories for the Red and Black. If Ohio State beat U. C. twice, the Red and Black took revenge by doing as much for our time-honored rivals, Miami. In all, five Ohio Conference frays were won by the Bearcats without any defeats by members of the group. Cincinnati's fame as a baseball school, coupled with the knowledge that the Red and Black would probably emerge victorious in the Conference tilts in which it engaged, led to a lessened interest in the competitive aspect of the sport and consequently caused a falling off in attendance. The scores:

Prospects for this year are bright except for the pitching staff. Captain Eddie Roth, last year's star moundsman, is no longer eligible for college competition on the time basis, and the same thing is true of Big Joe Linneman, who turned in several victories, and Hibarger, who was reserve pitcher, besides starting several games himself. Broker and Markle are left, but they have not had much experience in college circles, and hence will probably need some finishing touches put on their work, after which they can be counted upon to take a regular turn. Another serious blow to this year's pennant hopes came when Captain-elect Rheinhardt was declared ineligible to compete. "Rhiny" was one of the best catchers Varsity has had for several years, and in addition one of the most consistently hard hitters in the Conference. His list of home runs was long and imposing. Under Coach Chambers' guidance, however, there is no doubt that Varsity will turn out another high calibre team, if not another championship aggregation, this year. Though Varsity has lost some men in other positions, there seem to be men on hand to fill the places capably.

An interesting schedule has been planned which includes a tentative southern trip, when, it is hoped, games will be played with the University of Tennessee, Maryville College, and Center College. Other games scheduled have among them one with the team of Meiji University of Japan, and a return engagement with the University of Michigan. Seven Conference frays have been planned, with the strong Ohio State nine closing the schedule here on June twelfth.

Swimming

SWIMMING has taken on new life as a Varsity sport during the season 1923-24. Ever since Coach McLaren took charge of the swimming team during his first season at the University of Cincinnati, the activities and practice of the tank men have proceeded vigorously. This training showed its results in the spring of 1924.

The 1924 swimming team, while probably not the best ever produced in that sport at Varsity, still was able to hold its own against strenuous competition. A good approach to the high standards set by Lyon and Morris in 1913-15 was had when several of the records on the bronze plaques surrounding the pool were lowered. This breaking of old records is largely due to the steady and regular practice encouraged by Coach McLaren.

The Bearcat swimmers began their season with a meet against the team of The Cincinnati Gymnasium and Athletic Club on March fourteenth. An unusually large crowd was present to see the University swimmers win 43 to 25 in their own waters. Other meets scheduled included a return engagement at the Cincinnati Gym, a contest with Earlham College, and possible matches with the Hoosier Athletic Club, Indianapolis, and one or two Northern Ohio colleges.

The events in these meets were usually a forty-yard dash, a 220-yard swim, a hundred-yard swim, sixty-yard back stroke, hundred-yard breast stroke, the plunge, fancy diving and a four-man 160-yard relay.

Since a large number of men on this year's squad were freshmen, with not more than two seniors, prospects for having an excellent team in 1925 stand high.

Boxing

THIS year has been the first that Varsity has had a boxing team entered in intercollegiate matches for several years. The second annual school tournament was held January twenty-ninth in the form of an inter-fraternity meet. As a result, the following school champions were declared and earned the right to represent the school in its matches; Shorty Smith, bantam; Bob Conrow, feather; Jim Bradner, lightweight; Gordon Lillibridge, welterweight; Red Prather, middleweight; Griff Dye, light-heavyweight.

The heavyweight class was uncontested.

Of these men Smith, Lillibridge and Dye were champions of their respective weights last year also.

The first match was with Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Virginia, on February ninth, and was lost by the close score of 4 bouts to 3, Dye, Bromberg and Lillibridge being the victors for U. C. The first two named won by knockouts. The second match was with the University of Virginia on February eleventh at Charlottesville, Virginia, which U. C. lost, five bouts to one, Lillibridge being Varsity's only victor.

The last meet of the year was with the Cincinnati Gym, and Varsity made an excellent showing even though it lost. The proceeds of this match were donated to the U. S. Olympic Team for its trip to the Olympic Games at Paris this summer.

Although boxing has been barred by the Athletic Council, it is the hope of many students that this action on intercollegiate boxing by U. C. will be repealed.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Smith

Women's Athletics

It is only lately that the world in general has gotten away from the term "Physical Training" and substituted the word "Physical Education." How long will it take to change "Athletic Training" to "Athletic Education?" Too long have athletics been only for the few who were practicing to make the Varsity, while the rest of the girls, perhaps not quite good enough to make the Varsity, have been merely spectators.

The Women's Athletic Association at Cincinnati has made the first step towards athletic education. It started as a new organization this year, and, as the constitution was drawn up, the motto in everyone's mind was—"Athletics for all, and not for a few". The Varsity was still to be, but this year instead of signing up a number of inferior teams to play against, just for the sake of having a number of games, only five games were asked for, but they were hard games—the University of Pittsburg, the University of Tennessee, and Antioch College. Then in order to include every girl in the University, the following events were arranged: An inter-class basketball tournament, an inter-sorority tournament, and a non-sorority tournament, the Athletic Association proffering cups to the winning team in each tournament. The same program has been offered in each sport: Swimming, baseball and hockey. It has been a success from the very start. With the added incentive of a new point system, whereby points are given towards a final letter, we have kept the gymnasium going until almost six o'clock every night—a sure proof of success.

There is a long step between "Athletic Training" and "Athletic Education," but it is the step that will give us the highest standards in athletics of all sorts, and bring the best results; and we feel that this year we are at least half way up that step, and that in another year we will have reached the top.

THE great increase, both in the numbers of girls interested in athletics and in the scope of activities open to them, necessitated the organization of a more efficient association to take care of the directing of the manifold affairs which come under the jurisdiction of such a group. Hence the discarding of the old Athletic Council and the formation of the new Women's Athletic Association. The aims of the organization are a more adequate representation of all girls in the decisions which relate to their sports, and the inclusion of all the different branches. The organization is entirely in the hands of the students, with only a faculty advisor.

Basketball

VARSITY'S famous basketball team, defeated but once during the scope of memory of the oldest inhabitant, played five games during the year 1923-24. The first game, with the University of Pittsburg, was a huge success, if one may judge by the amount of noise raised in the men's gym. Pitt. used the same style of play, the short and fast passes, rather than the long looping ones—that Varsity did. Beating them meant the breaking of the record of eleven years of victories. The closeness of the game, however, was best indicated by the score 32-30. The next game, with the University of Tennessee, was played at Tennessee, where the girls were treated with true southern hospitality. Tennessee, however, was completely outclassed, and the game was an easy victory for the Bearkittens, to the tune of 29-9. The next game, also with Tennessee, was played here in the women's gym, and, with the rooting better than ever before, Varsity piled up the score easily. The southern girls played hard, but couldn't class Varsity in the finer points of the game and consequently the final result was 56-23.

Antioch came to Varsity intent on breaking her long string of victories. The game was slowed up considerably by the continuous use of time-outs by the up-staters, but was well played by the Varsity girls. It looked at first as though it was going to be a close shave for the local basketweavers, but they finally emerged with a comfortable margin of ten points, the final score being 22-12. The disaster of the season came in the return game with Antioch, which took place on the out-of-town court. The contest was well fought throughout and in every particular, but the Antioch girls played under modified boys' rules, putting our Bearkittens at a decided disadvantage. One satisfaction for the wearers of the Red and Black was that the final outcome was in doubt until the very last second of play. The score at the final gun showed but a one point advantage for the Antioch girls, 13-12.

Prospects for next year are not particularly bright in that the team will be without the services of some of its most valuable players, but the followers of the team are encouraged by the fact that some of the substitutes of this year have been kept off the regular team only through the valiant efforts of those already on to retain their places.

Tournament

The Third Annual Tri-State Basketball Tournament was carried on very successfully on March fourteenth and fifteenth under the direction of the Women's Athletic Association, and Celia Scarborough, the Bearkitten's manager. Before the tournament, the favorite was the Owensville, Indiana, team, but the long trip, coupled with the nervous strain, proved too much for them and they were beaten by the Owensville, Ohio, aggregation. This team, however, was overcome in the final struggle for the cup by the strong Franklin six, which in the semi-finals had defeated Norwood by a single point in the most exciting game of the tournament. Local interest ran highest in the Hughes-Norwood game, which Norwood took by the same margin.

Hockey

HOCKEY has taken its place on the list of major sports at Varsity this year. Last year it was more or less of a novelty and only a few enthusiastic and interested people came out for it, but this year Miss Helen L. Coops started in earnest to interest everyone in hockey, and judging from the number of people that came down on Carson Field to practice every afternoon last fall, her efforts were successful.

A Varsity Hockey Team was organized with Mary Rowe Moore as manager and Marna Brady as captain. This team played only two games, for East High is the only school in the city that has a hockey team. The first game was with the All-Stars mixed team. The All-Stars are seemingly conscienceless creatures, for they suffered no qualms of remorse over acquiring several Varsity men to play on their team. The game was a good one but the All-Stars won. The second game, with East High, was more favorable for Varsity—they won. East High has a fast team and it was a hard fight to get ahead of them but Varsity did it. With such a successful beginning, Miss Coops expects to feature interclass hockey as well as a Varsity team next year.

Swimming

SWIMMING is the third major sport carried on during the season in girls' athletics. It has been made a great deal more of this year, and is fast becoming a very popular sport. Miss Helen Coops, of T. C. of Columbia University, is in charge, and has done much to stimulate interest. Besides plain swimming, a life-saving course was given by her in her capacity as a Red Cross Life Saving Examiner.

The first meet of the year was of the point variety, and the individual winner was Mary Rowe Moore. The next was an interclass affair with the added purpose of picking a Varsity team. The meet was won by the Juniors, Marna Brady scoring the most points for that team. The third event, the stunt meet for those who wade or swim, was not only delightful to those entered in it, but also to the spectators. It was concluded with an interclass water-polo game with modified rules. Varsity was scheduled for three meets, two with East High School and one with the Newport Y. W. C. A. The first meet was a rather easy win for East High, but Varsity determined to make a better showing next time and did.

The novel feature of this year's swimming is water polo, and it has proved most successful. Played with modified rules it is less strenuous, although most of the excitement is retained. Prospects look more than usually bright for next year under Miss Coops' guidance, and with some of the intercollegiate meets in mind, swimming should be more attractive than ever to the girls.

Intramural Athletics

GIRLS' intramural athletics have been more than a success this year. Possibly some of the interest is due to the organization of the Women's Athletic Association, and the point system fixed by it. Hockey was made a major sport, and though the games numbered only two, the All-Star and East High, this type of athletics has taken quite a firm foothold already. Next year interclass hockey will be added to the athletic program, and if as much interest is exhibited as was shown this year, it should be very successful. When the weather no longer permitted hockey to be indulged in, basketball became the dominant interest. Rather than concentrating on a Varsity team of eight to ten girls as has been done in previous years, Miss Smith attempted to get as many girls interested in athletics as possible. Interest was aroused in basketball because of the cup offered to the sorority and non-sorority teams winning their series of games. In the sorority series Chi Omega was victorious after playing the final game with Alpha Chi Omega. The referees and umpires had a rather difficult time with the Greeks when it came to calling fouls and out-of-bound plays. Chi Omega then won from the Hunters, the winners of the non-sorority series.

Swimming has progressed wonderfully, due mostly to the inspiration offered by Miss Helen L. Coops, of the Physical Education Department. It is also a major sport and is fast gaining in popularity. The several events of the season stimulated interest worthy of the effort expended.

No one can resist getting out of doors and hurling disci, baseballs and basketballs around the field when the spring weather arrives. So there is usually a great deal of class spirit evident on Field Day, and this year was no exception. The class events brought the girls out for their class even if they could not compete in the individual tests. We have to thank Miss Marjorie Hillas for bringing Greek games to the University of Cincinnati, and Miss Helen N. Smith for carrying the plan on so admirably and adding to it each year. This now traditional contest in athletics, song, dance and lyric, between the Freshmen and Sophomore classes, has become one of the recognized educational as well as athletic events in the University program.

Nothing could have been more lovely than the chariot races, a new feature added this year by Miss Smith, which requires both training and imagination.

Inter-sorority baseball was as much if not more of a success this year than last; more knowledge of the game makes for better team play, and the playing of all the teams was better than last year. The Tennis Tournament between classes was also new this year, but proved quite effective.

Using as their motto "Athletics for All", the Physical Education Department has increased, and expects to increase, the number of people interested in a wide variety of athletics.

DRAMATICS

"Belinda"

ON November twenty-third and twenty-fourth, the Mummers presented as the first play of their season A. A. Milne's delightful comedy, "Belinda", called by the author, "An April folly in three acts". "Belinda," to whose spring-time romance the delicate touch of Milne has given a characteristically humorous turn, concerns the amorous adventures of the supposed widow, Mrs. Belinda Tremayne. Many complications arise when her two suitors, her grown-up daughter, and her husband meet.

The new interior set used was designed and constructed by members of the Board of Directors, and made a charming and realistic background for the action. Members of the cast were:

Belinda Tremayne	- - - -	Miss Helen Conner
Delia, her daughter	- - - -	Miss Elizabeth Holman
Harold Baxter	- - - -	Mr. Geoffrey Levy
Claude Devenish	- - - -	Mr. Donald Beddoe
John Tremayne	- - - -	Mr. John Rose
The Maid	- - - -	Miss Helen Lowe

"Rutherford and Son"

The Mummers' attempt at serious drama was justified on February twenty-second and twenty-third by their production of "Rutherford and Son", by Gelton Sowerby. The play, presented for probably the first time in America, is laid in England, and is built about a man who has sacrificed himself and the individuality of his children to his obsession for material progress—for "Rutherford and Son". The piece as a whole is rather difficult for amateur production, since it provides for so little physical action, and, with the exception of a few scenes, requires a repression of emotion. Nevertheless, the members of the cast, under the direction of Mr. Frank Byers, were sufficiently consistent and even-toned to maintain the atmosphere throughout. Members of the cast were:

John Rutherford	- - - -	Mr. Edward Lee Meyer
John	- - - -	Mr. John Rose
Richard	- - - -	Mr. Sol Breeson
Janet, his daughter	- - - -	Miss Mary Fuqua Turner

Mary, his daughter-in-law,	- - - -
John's wife	- - - -	Miss Dorothy Gillespie
Martin, his foreman	- - - -	Mr. P. Elias Phillips

"The Cuckoo"

On the afternoon and evening of April eleventh, The Mummers presented "The Cuckoo" by H. V. Carew, a former student at the University of Cincinnati. "The Cuckoo", an ultra-modern mystery play, was chosen because of its exciting situations, its clever dialogue, and the surprising turns and twists of its plot. The cast was as follows:

The Innkeeper, Sam	- - - -	Mr. Lawrence Bittenweiser
Frederick Bentham	- - - -	Mr. P. Elias Phillips
Katie, his daughter	- - - -	Miss Sophie Moore
Myrtle	- - - -	By Herself

Junior Prom

ON the evening of March twenty-eighth, the Juniors held their celebrated and well attended Prom in the men's gymnasium. The syncopations which thrilled the hearts of the dancers were furnished by Wiedemeyer's Eight-Piece Orchestra from Huntington, West Virginia.

The success of La Balle was made complete by the distinctive decorations of blue, white, and gold, which entirely transformed the gym. The varied colored lights conforming to a rainbow were used throughout the program and blended harmoniously with the many hues of the co-eds' attractive gowns.

The favors, leather book-ends, given toward the close of the evening, were most attractive. The committee to be complimented for the year's best social event was:

The Freshman Reception

IF only we could have another dance just like that last Freshman Reception. Even the price of admission wasn't so prohibitive—for the Freshmen anyway. Coming as it did—during the Thanksgiving Holidays—everybody was in the mood for a gay time. It was a peppy dance with jazzy music, and the decorations were in harmony with the supposed mental condition of the guests—green.

On Friday afternoon, October twenty-sixth, from four to six o'clock the Y. M. C. A. was host to all Liberal Arts and Engineering Freshmen, in the Woman's Building. The "Get-Wise Party" is an annual affair which enables all Freshmen to become better acquainted with their classmates and with the upper classmen.

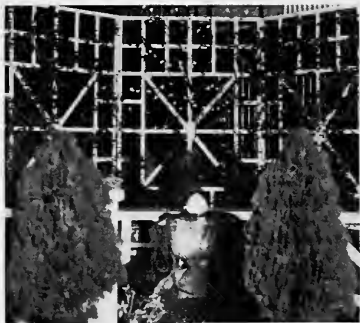

Five-minute speeches by President Frederick C. Hicks, Dean F. W. Chandler, Dean Josephine Simrall, and Nelson F. Caldwell, president of the Y. M. C. A., were followed by dancing in the woman's gym.

The Senior Hop

THE crystal ball above that turned 'round and 'round; the serpentines of many hues that hung from the ceiling; the four corners of the gym—all different—each decorated by a different class; all this contributed to making the Senior Hop one good dance.

And those corners! The Seniors made a cozy corner in which to rest. In their corner, the Freshmen placed a mirror in which the Seniors watched their hop. The Sophomores erected a rustic hut, with an old witch inside who foretold the future. Best of all—and the judges said so, too—was the gym corner transformed by the Juniors into a beautiful old-fashioned garden.

The Sophomore Hop

As usual, the Sophomore Hop lived up to all expectations. Perhaps it was the crowd, perhaps the decorations, or perhaps the music that made the dance such a good one. Anyway, everyone who was present pronounced it a huge success and those who were not there regretted it.

The gym was transformed by springlike decorations; rainbow shades predominated to carry out the colors adopted by the Sophomore Class earlier in the year. The lighting effects designed by Charles Schneider and Jack Loofbourrow were extremely novel. Nothing but colored lights were used and these were changed during every dance, further carrying out the rainbow idea.

Pat Patrick and his Singing Orchestra, an eight-piece organization from Cleveland, Ohio, was one of the peppiest heard on the campus this year. Departing from the usual custom of having Varsity dances begin at nine o'clock, the Sophomore Hop set precedent by beginning at eight. The extra hour thus afforded the dancers for "tripping the light" was much appreciated.

The Military Ball

THE World War may be over, but its result, that is the military spirit, still lives. Anyone who attended the Fourth Annual Military Ball, held at the men's gym on Saturday, March first, 1924, will agree to that.

The men's gym was decorated in a very unique military style. Overhead hung fine streamers of red, white and blue crepe arranged in a large wheel, with a suitable center piece of draped flags. Around the sides were numerous large flags, gracefully drawn and artistically located. The musicians' stand was striped in the red, white and blue.

To this array of military splendor, more enjoyment was added by the snappy stream of jazz. One could not help but feel a sense of pride as the R. O. T. C. unit, led by Major Herman, marched to the inspiring music down the dance room floor, and came to a halt at the end of the room to receive the khaki programs. Jordan's Saxophone Combination of Louisville, Kentucky, furnished the music.

During the course of the evening, the dance was interrupted by the bang of a pistol. Scabbard and Blade, the honorary military fraternity, then announced their pledges.

Later, another shot was fired, and Kent Ellsworth Nourse of Walnut Hills, was announced as the student who was given the honorary appointment to West Point.

The dance, free from any monotony, continued until at twelve, the flicker of the lights branded the Fourth Annual Military Ball the best ever.

MUSICAL ACTIVITIES

Men's Glee Club

AT the beginning of the year, the Men's Glee Club was without a director, and with only twelve old members to carry traditions along. Luckily a man was found who was not only a real musician, but also had the personality to build up and extend the reputation of the society.

Under the direction of Alvin J. King, the work of selecting and training voices started and went on apace, until at the end of the season the club found itself in a better position than ever before. For the first time in many years out-of-town trips were taken, notably to Chilli-cothe and Terrace Park, and were such a success that they were immediately followed by requests for further performances; while people who attended the home concert were reported to aver that it was the best fifty cents' worth they had ever heard.

With the approach of the new season, the men feel that they will be in a still better position to carry out the hopes of their founders, and to provide concerts of the very best in music, which will really bring credit to the University and to the city.

Girls' Glee Club

Under the leadership of Mr. Tuthill of the Conservatory of Music, the Girls' Glee Club has this year given quite a number of successful concerts. Previous to the initial concert given here, an interesting program was broadcasted from W. S. A. I. Following the home concert, which was a decided success, the club gave concerts at Antioch College, East High School, Ohio State University, and Toledo University, besides various social functions in Cincinnati.

The University Band

THE University Band has had a most successful year, playing at every game at home—from the first football game with Kentucky Wesleyan on September twenty-ninth, 1923, to the Miami basketball game on March fifteenth, 1924. In addition, the Band travelled with the football team to Athens, Ohio, for the game with Ohio University on October twentieth, and also went to Oxford, Ohio, to play for the Miami basketball game there on March eighth, 1924.

The Band has been fortunate this year in having more applicants than places at times, thus enabling those in charge to make trips matters of competition, and taking only the best players. This resulted in an increase of interest on the part of those wishing to be in the Band, and brought out a better attendance at rehearsals and home games.

At the Ohio Northern football game on November tenth, the Band introduced the new "U. C. Field March", both the words and music of which were written by Carl Backus, Medical College, '27. This new march was also played at all basketball games during the winter, just as the Bearcats came onto the floor. A flag-raising ceremony, at which the Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" as the American Flag was raised, and the "Alma Mater", as the Red and Black flag went up, was made a part of the opening ceremonies of football games. A special program, to be put on by both bands was planned for the Miami game on Thanksgiving Day, but the mud and rain prevented its being carried out.

The credit for building the Band to its present state of ability should be given to Sergeant Victor Knordling, of the Tenth Infantry Band, Fort Thomas, Kentucky, who was secured early in the year to direct the University Band, and to Major P. H. Herman, the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, and Professor R. H. Anderegg, of the College of Engineering and Commerce, who have given the Band their full support and encouragement throughout the year.

The prospects for next year's University Band, with the nucleus which will carry over from this year, and the addition which can be expected from the Freshman Class, are certainly brighter than ever before. The increased and improved morale evinced by the members of the Band, and the appreciative attitude adopted by the athletic authorities and the student body, augur well for a "Bigger and Better Band".

LITERARY ACTIVITIES

Men's Debate Team

THE University of Cincinnati has always maintained a high standard of forensic excellence. During the year 1922-23, seven debates resulted in five victories and two defeats. The year 1923-24 promises to be equally successful.

The debating schedule for this year was an unusually heavy one. On January eighteenth, Cincinnati engaged in a dual debate with Indiana University on the question, "Resolved: that the United States should enter the Permanent Court of International Justice." The affirmative won in our own auditorium, but our negative lost at Bloomington. On February fifteenth Cincinnati won a double victory in a dual debate with Butler College on the compulsory judicial settlement of labor disputes. March seventeenth was the date of the clash with Miami and Ohio over the World Court Issue. On March twenty-first a single debate was held with Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Virginia, on the World Court question.

Women's Debate Team

This year has seen the advent of a new activity upon the campus. For the first time in the history of the institution, an all-women's debate was conducted. On March twenty-seventh, in McMicken auditorium, Varsity's affirmative team, composed of Rosetta Ehrlick, captain; Dorothea Lynch, and Anita Fenton, met the negative team from Denison University, debating the question, "Resolved that the United States should enter the Permanent Court of International Justice, without Reservations." At Granville, Ohio, Clara Elizabeth Findlater, captain of the traveling team, Rose Gale, Elizabeth Sidle, and Dorothy Besuden, alternate, defended the negative side of the same question.

These pioneers in women's debating have worked hard, but successfully, in order to establish a precedent at the University. Their perseverance has made them deserving of all the support which the student body can give them. Greater things are expected of them in the future, so it is with keen interest that we look forward to their activities and triumphs next year.

The Literary Society

HERE is the "Lit" to whom the approach of December twenty-fifth does not hold a thrill other than that of two weeks vacation? Try and find one, and you will find instead that she is planning for the traditional "Lit" Christmas Party. The Drawing Rooms of the Woman's Building outdo their usual hospitality with the abundance of holly and mistletoe, and the alluring glow of the fire in the wide fireplace. The fun could not be confined to the fourteen active members, but is extended to members of the faculty and many interested guests. The Girls' Glee Club, creating an appropriate atmosphere by their choral robes, render a number of the well-known and loved Christmas carols. And, most traditional, most necessary, and most enjoyed feature of the program, Dean Chandler reads. When his irresistible personality and humor have set in the best of order the dispositions and digestive systems of the entire merry company, tea, real English rolls, and jam are served and enjoyed by the "Lits"; and everyone departs with a full store of holiday spirit and enthusiasm to scatter along her path.

The Aspirants

This year, the Aspirants, the literary society for under-classmen, published "The New Scribe", the only strictly literary magazine on the campus.

In "The New Scribe" were published short stories, poems, and essays of high merit written by different students at the University.

The magazine met with financial and literary success; and it is a source of pride both to the Aspirants and to the University at large.

Cincinnati-Miami Game

OH, didn't it rain! It certainly did, continuously! The great game of our football season, the long-heralded conflict with Miami, was deluged by one of the most dismal rains that ever flooded our campus. But without any doubt, that old adage about the silver lining peeping through the clouds was never truer than on that day. The drenched rooters, aided in their loyalty by many umbrellas and raincoats, were amply rewarded by the way our men, muddy and dripping, slid over the line and piled up a score of 27 points, Miami being unable to score once. It certainly helped those who braved the elements on Thanksgiving Day, reluctantly leaving behind turkey dinners and cozy firesides, to dry out much more quickly that night when they thought of that hot score. Varsity was mighty proud to note the steady loyalty of the student body who cheered through this game, despite the uncomfortable conditions; and was prouder still of the decisive victory accorded our team.

Miami Day

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Once again the big red wave from up north threatened the landscape. Shall it recede red or shall its crest flame red and black?

Surely no one in town on Miami Day this year could doubt the sincerity of the spirit of our student body. At twelve o'clock, nearly a thousand sons and daughters of Old McMicken assembled in the traditional Thanksgiving convocation service, to render thanks to God for all the blessings bestowed on our University in the past year, and to ask for guidance in each new undertaking. We did not pray for victory, rather we asked for the bestowal of all the attributes of fair play and superior strength which would eventually result in leadership.

Then evening! Excitement reigns high. 'Midst scuffling of feet and thumping of drums, a mighty horde wends its way toward the most prominent part of the city—Fountain Square. The town seems to be a rendezvous for a band of "Wee Willie Winkies". Yes, it is the annual Pajama Parade. Traffic is blocked, crowds gather quickly and stare, and old Cincinnati reverberates in "Praise of Old U. C.". Miami once, Miami twice—a ripple of applause from the cheering throng—once again for U. C.—traffic resumes its course, and the vast conclave advances upon the unexpecting Gibson Ballroom.

And here, until almost three o'clock, the sons of Varsity dance with the fair daughters of Miami, and vice versa. During the halves of the wrestling match, Toby, down from Oxford in all his glory, shows the boys how! The Cincy-Miami Dance surely didn't lack pep. Nor, in fact, did the whole day which was dedicated to the demonstration of some real Cincinnati spirit against our old rivals, Miami.

Contest Day

“WHY not Golf?” Why not? Almost every other sport is in evidence on Contest Day, that day when the Frosh and the Sophomores contend for supremacy in many of the major sports of the University. This year the sophomores, realizing the prowess of the powerful Freshman class, organized their team early and spent many weary hours in practice. Their efforts were rewarded for once! Their end of the football score exceeded that of their opponents by almost two points, in spite of the referee.

Likewise in soccer they defeated the too-confident Freshmen with very little trouble. The athletes of '27, however, were not discouraged by the results of the various games, for they knew that the mat rush was coming.

Mat Rush

Cheatin' shows, never goes! Not even in a mat rush. Of course we certainly haven't any intention of saying that the Sophomores didn't play fair—they were only too anxious to get started. Before the whistle blew, they surged out over the field and blithely skipped back home, dragging the mat behind them. They tried to say that they were only practicing, but evidently the practice didn't help much, for the Frosh were easily the victors in the other three attempts to capture the prize and take it home. The mat rush wasn't so very rough this year, only three ambulances and two taxis being pressed into service, and just about a mere half-dozen being forced to leave the scene in barrels. Of course, this annual traditional contest is a true test of the prowess of the Sophomore and Freshmen classes, but personally we think it is conducted in co-operation with a well-known downtown store whose advertising sign reads—“We retail shirts”.

P. H. HERMAN
*Major, Coast Artillery Corps, D. O. I.,
Professor of Military Science and Tactics*

TO THOSE who knew the R. O. T. C. at this University during the first year of its existence, it is almost incredible that the present organization could be in any way connected with it.

The progress made during these four years has been phenomenal. Its cause has been the attitude of the students towards military training. They realize that there are many great advantages to be derived from such training, and they know that to be trained to do their part towards the support of the defense of their country is only a duty that every self-respecting citizen owes to his fellow men.

Our students never fail to do their duties. This is a precept that has seemed to spring up voluntarily among them; and a more commendable one is hard to imagine.

We are proud of our R. O. T. C., and an officer may well consider himself honored to be sent here for duty.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps

THE Reserve Officers' Training Corps of the University of Cincinnati, under the direction of Major Paul H. Herman, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. A., has had a very successful year. Established in 1919 with the installation of the Engineer and Coast Artillery Units, it has grown steadily in numbers and popularity until the year 1923-24 finds us with three units: The Coast Artillery Corps, the Corps of Engineers, and the Ordnance Department.

Major Paul H. Herman, C. A. C., succeeded Major Sidney H. Guthrie, C. A. C., as Professor of Military Science and Tactics upon Major Guthrie's retirement in March, 1923, and has been able to carry on in ever-increasing interest and enthusiasm the work which Major Guthrie so well started. Under Major Herman are Captain Porter P. Lowry, C. A. C., and Captain Clifford D. Hindle, C. A. C., who are in charge of the Coast Artillery Unit; Captain James A. B. Gibson, Ordnance Department, in charge of the Ordnance Unit; and First Lieutenant Chester K. Harding, Corps of Engineers, and First Lieutenant Roy Green, Corps of Engineers, who are in charge of the Engineer Unit. All of the above officers have been on duty at the University of Cincinnati for a number of years except Captain Clifford D. Hindle, C. A. C., who reported in August, 1923. Captain Hindle is a graduate of Brown University with the degree of Civil Engineer, and was commissioned in 1917, having served in France with the American Expeditionary Forces, in Germany with the Army of Occupation, and in Coast Defenses on the Atlantic Coast since his return to the United States.

The enlisted personnel of the R. O. T. C. detachment is headed by First Sergeant Roman Huber, and includes Staff Sergeant Clarence L. Underwood, Sergeant Joseph C. Middlebrooks, Sergeant Charles L. Parkin, Private H. H. Huff, and Private Austin T. Donahue. Sergeant Parkin is also new to the University this year, having reported in August, 1923. Sergeant Parkin has been in the Engineers for over seventeen years, and has served in Cuba, Hawaii, France, and Germany. He was a member of the Second Engineers, which regiment was decorated for its part in the Battle of Soissons, in the World War. Three of the men of the enlisted Detachment hold commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps: Sergeant Huber is a Major, Infantry Section, O. R. C., and Sergeants Underwood and Middlebrooks both hold commissions as First Lieutenants in the Quartermaster Section, Officers' Reserve Corps.

Due to the fact that credit was not given for service in the World War the first year, the enrollment for that year totalled 574. In 1920-1921 credit was given, and enrollment dropped to 410, and to 338 in 1921-1922. In 1922-1923 the enrollment rose again to 599, and this year it is 705. Since the first two years are compulsory, a better estimate of the popularity of the work of the Military Department is gained from the enrollment of the Advanced Courses. In 1920-1921 there were 16 men taking the Advanced work. In 1921-1922 this rose to 36; in 1922-1923, to 101; and this year the enrollment for the Advanced Courses in all three Units totals 142.

The primary object of the R. O. T. C. is, of course, to prepare college men to hold commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps of the Army of the United States. Lieutenant James B. Meadows, Engineer Section, O. R. C., was the first man to be commissioned from the R. O. T. C. Unit at the University of Cincinnati, receiving his commission as a Second Lieutenant upon his graduation in 1922. In 1923, twenty-two men were commissioned, and thirty-eight will receive their commissions upon the completion of this year's work at the University and of six weeks in the summer camps of their respective Units.

A number of innovations in the work of the R. O. T. C. have been initiated this year by Major Herman. One of the most important of these is the creation of a Cadet Staff in each Section, consisting of the Cadet Major, Ordnance Officer and Assistant Ordnance Officer, Morale Officer and Assistant Morale Officer, Plans and Training Officer and Assistant Plans and Training Officer, Finance Officer and Assistant Finance Officer, Supply Officer and Assistant Supply Officer, Staff Adjutant and Assistant Staff Adjutant, Field Adjutant, Signal Officer, and the Captains and First Lieutenants of the two companies of the Battalion. It was felt that the creation of this Staff, with some degree of responsibility in matters of policy, would serve to develop those qualities of responsibility and leadership so essential to success in civilian life as well as in the army, would provide a medium through which the wishes of the Cadets could be made known to the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, and would provide a body to put into effect the decisions reached. Major Herman and the Cadet Staffs have worked in complete accord, and the success of the experiment is unquestioned. The Cadet Staff of Section X was responsible for the very successful smoker held on February second at Fort Thomas, and the Staff of Section XX was responsible for the arrangements and conduct of the Military Ball.

Major Herman has also rearranged the curriculum of the first two years so that the Freshmen and Sophomore years are truly "basic" for the Advanced Courses. Formerly specialization was started in the Freshmen year at the completion of the outdoor drill period in the Fall, each Unit offering its own course in the theory of its especial branch.

Cadet Staff—Section X

As a means of increasing interest in Infantry Drill and the Manual of Arms, Captain Porter P. Lowry and Captain Clifford D. Hindle offered a first prize of five dollars and a second prize of three dollars to the Freshmen most proficient in these two subjects. The competition was run off in each Section in the spring drill period, the final competition being a part of the Military Demonstration on Commencement Day. The Pettibone Brothers Manufacturing Company donated a guidon to the Military Department to be carried each week by the Platoon which was the best drilled the previous week. Each Friday that the weather permitted a formal Retreat was staged by the Battalion. This formation tended to develop interest in the appearance of the Battalions in ceremonies, and instilled greater respect for the Flag.

Two inspection trips—one for each Section—were made by the Military Department to Fort Thomas on February first and February eighth, 1924. These trips consisted of the formation of the Battalion on the Fort Thomas Parade Ground, the explanation of the duties of each man in a squad of an Infantry Rifle Company in the attack, a demonstration attack by a full war strength Platoon from the Tenth Infantry, an inspection of the Regimental Mess Hall and Company Barracks, and a Battalion Parade and Retreat by a battalion of the Tenth Infantry.

In addition to the work of the Men's Rifle Club, the Military Department furnished instruction, rifles, and ammunition to the Girls' Rifle Club. The Men's Rifle Team fired matches with Rifle Teams from the R. O. T. C. Units of Denison University, the University of Minnesota, the University of Nebraska, and all the Units in the Fifth Corps Area, which embraces the states of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky. In addition, matches were fired in competition with the schools entering the William Randolph Hearst Match and the Interurban Schools Association Match. On March nineteenth, the Pistol Team fired a match in competition with the Cadets of the United States Military Academy.

The Cadet Staff of Section X had charge of the highly successful smoker held at Fort Thomas on February second. A luncheon in the Regimental Mess Hall, followed by five four-round bouts of boxing in the Gymnasium, occupied the greater part of the evening. The Tenth Infantry Orchestra furnished music between bouts. The Military Ball was arranged by the Cadet Staff of Section XX, and was more than successful. An interesting feature of the Military Ball was the pledging of the men elected to Scabbard and Blade.

Through the efforts of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, Honorable Nicholas Longworth, Representative from the First Congressional District of Ohio, awarded the nomination of a Principal Candidate for the United States Military Academy at West Point to the Military Department of the University. The honor of this appointment was conferred on Kent Ellsworth Nourse, C. E. '28, the announcement being made at the Military Ball.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps of the University of Cincinnati has been inspected by officers representing the Chief of Coast Artillery, the Chief of Ordnance, and the Chief of Engineers, and by a representative from the Fifth Corps Area Headquarters. All the inspectors expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the work of the Units at the University of Cincinnati, and no adverse criticism of any kind was made. In indorsements to the Annual Report of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics, the Chiefs of the three Branches of the Army represented in the three Units of the R. O. T. C. at the University complimented the work of the Military Department. The Adjutant General of the Army, in behalf of the Secretary of War, said: "The progress of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Cincinnati is very satisfactory and indicates efficient work on the part of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics and his assistants at the institution". The Corps Area Commander of the Fifth Corps Area said: "The Corps Area Commander has noted with approbation the accomplishments of your Units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps as evidenced by the favorable remarks by the Chiefs of the Branches of the Army which are represented in your institution".

An effort is being made to have the University of Cincinnati declared a "Distinguished College", the highest honor granted by the War Department to a school maintaining an R. O. T. C. Unit, and Major Herman is very confident that this recognition will be granted.

OUT of the evanescent mists of the empyream, wafted on the billowy zephyrs, leaping the incomparable abyss to dash itself finally against the fairy softness, the icy kisses come lurching with each caress, loitering with the vagrant winds. "Ah, ha! What hast thou there?" And incommunicably mournful sougled the answer, "Razberrahs." And so, limned against the incarnadined nebulae, we fade and are gone, austere permeated with the myrrhy fragrance, aspiring ever, failing never. Such is our mission.

Foreword

SINCE the day Cincinnatian II was brought to earth by the editorial stork, I, his godfather, have watched anxiously every step in the metamorphosis of his heretic soul. On his arrival at years of heretical discretion, he had been promised a place in the Biggest of Years on the Best of Annuals. Being by juxtaposition and education of analytic predilections, I watched with apprehension his hurtling through the several Shakspearean stages of growth to a precocious cynicism.

Came time to break into print, and Cincinnatian II had become a veritable Falkenstein; truly an emancipated Youth. But the bargain having been struck, we held to it and let him hurl his fiery Brann of satire against us and ours, withering every crop of conceits, pillaging our altars of fraternal life, razing our edifices of pride, battering down the gates of our stone-walled institutions of college life.

GEORGE J. FREY,
Chief Custodian

FROM an institution of 100 students—95 men and 5 women—I have seen the University develop until it is one of the largest institutions in the country. Back in 1896, I began my work here as an assistant to my father, when there was but one building and one department—that is, the College of Liberal Arts. Today, we have fifteen buildings and nine departments, requiring thirty-two men and four women to take care of the cleaning and upkeep.

My father, Joseph Frey, came to the University twenty-five years previous to the time that I began my work here. The year that I started, the University graduated thirty-two men and four women. Not until 1906 did the graduates go over the 100 mark in number. At that time, 100 Liberal Arts students and 14 Engineers were attending the University.

I have been asked many times what I think of the college student of today as compared with the student of twenty-eight years ago. It would appear that the men are more manly. In the old days they wore moustaches and Valentino side-burns. Today the men students' faces are not adorned with any "scenery". The girls I know better, for I have always been a student of the feminine wiles. Personally, I believe that they are much more beautiful than in years gone by. This can be accounted for by their youthfulness and mode of apparel. Today the girls enter the University much younger than in 1896, and therefore they have that breezy spirit of youth and life.

So, in closing my remarks, I concur in the motto put out by a famous biscuit company, "The World is Growing Better", especially the University of Cincinnati.

Old Age Insurance

Many insure their house or automobile against fire or robbery—which MAY NEVER COME. But they give no thought to insuring themselves against old age—which IS CERTAIN TO COME.

There is no luxury so enjoyable as the knowledge that your old age will be protected against financial difficulties. And there is no method so sure of providing for that time than through a savings account.

It may not be much at the start, but the largest fortunes grew from dollar bills. Added to regularly and augmented by 4% interest compounded semi-annually, your declining years will be protected. Start a savings account today by making your first deposit at the PROVIDENT—the bank of careful service.

This is the tale of a Young Blood, who, in spite of Parental Influence and paternal Pull with the Big fellows in town, was out to make Good on his own Gas. In addition to being a Diamond in the Rough, he was all Business and had the rep of being the only Guy in Town who kept his eyes on the ball and left the co-eds Alone. Our Hero had read in the Magazine for Successful Men, that a College education would be a great Help, so he chose the Big place for his debut.

Up on the hill, he was doing Well to make his Life Complete, but somehow the Boys didn't take to him. He never cared much for Nocturnal jubilees or such like. Hard work and concentration made him the Big Mogul on the Hill. He attained a student-assistantship in Sociology, in Addition to passing in the Prize Physics Essay entitled "a Critique of Asseveration". Our hero was headed well over into the Men's Vocational Bureau as a Life work when he met a Real girl one day, who had the Darlingest eyes and who knew all he did and More besides. It was Stacomb and Eau de Lilac from then on. After the second summer Vacation the Boy wore three Buttons and real Yellow shoes, and practically hid his Vest with Fraternity Pins. His dad got him into the Elks, where he passed through the 48 Degrees, and in short order was eligible for the managership of the Employment Department in his father's Plant. He married, joined the three-hours-for-lunch club, and bought Heavy on Arcadia Mixture Preferred.

Every Ten years our Hero used to have his third Butler dust off the Sociology books and reflect on the Men's Uplift Society he almost Formed.

Moral—Don't neglect any Activities while at School.

Diagram illustrating young male student, handing diploma (1) to figure of Praxitales in hallway of McMicken (2). This figure shows prevalent type of student (3) found in American colleges in one of their carefree attitudes.

- (3) Student, name given to species of young male wearing fur coat, and light blue ties. See Brady, "American Student", p 87, also "College Humor".
- (2) McMicken Hall, a Hall of Learning—sometimes—at U. of C.
- (1) Diploma—a sheet of paper signed by various college dignitaries generally in the left hand corner. Names always are illegible. Masters "History of the Crustacea", p. 534, or better, McGuire's "Theory of Auscultation", Vol. 1, p. 213. McMicken Co. publ., New York.

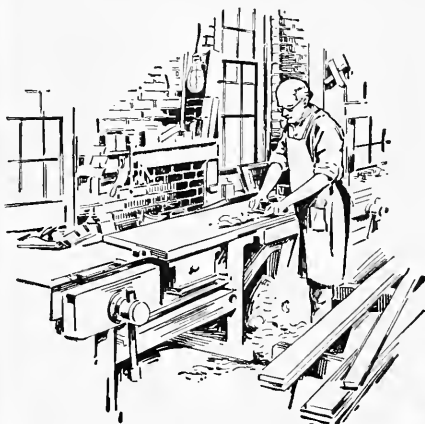

The concluding tale telleth of an Infant Prodigy named Cyrus. Cyrus started to be a Bookworm at the age of 7 years. The Sunday Supplements carried the Story of his knowing the Bones of the Skull and the Structures passing thru their Foramina with Anatomical relations, when he was 8 years Old. At 13, our friend was showing profs. where they made their mistakes in the Fourth Decimal Place, like Doc Einstein started to do recently. His townfolks erected a high-school in his Honor. They got Educator right. He was graduated from his Alma mater at the time his Pals were busting up the Boy Rovers' Club on account of Buddie Higgins' kid Brother who was always Butting in on the Club's Secrets.

After graduation, Cyrus went into Training for a Ph. D. degree. He managed to over-ride it by a Couple of Theses, but he was always the Seeker for Truth, and never stopped work till the Lights went Out. When the Call came from a big University, Cyrus was Ready to serve the Intellectual Hoodlums of the College. He started Low as Assistant instructor in Economic Geography with a promise of a Crack at the Deanship, and a chance to tell the Children at graduation of the Pitfalls of After-Life. Cyrus spent many happy Years among his Students.

Recently his Alma Mater bought a Picture of him for its Store Room in the Garage showing Him as instructor in Geography at the Big University at the Age of 54. Who's who does not Know him, nor has he Broken out into Print. He died at the Age of 67 with a quiet Family funeral.

MY FORMULA

Purity, plus Cleanliness, plus Freshness equals that palate delight known as STRIETMANN DELICIOUSNESS

YOU may have wondered as you enjoyed them, why Strietmann's cookie-cakes and crackers were so unapproachably delicious. My formula will satisfy your wonder.

To be served a dainty that is unapproachably delicious is usually all one asks, but isn't it reassuring to know that the cookie-cakes and crackers you like best of all are made according to the highest standards of purity and cleanliness?

I exercise a stern guardianship over the selection of the materials used in my cookie-cakes and crackers, and over every detail of the modern baking process.

I take special pains to see that when my products reach you they retain the oven freshness, flavor and fragrance that I well know delights your palate.

The Telephone Industry

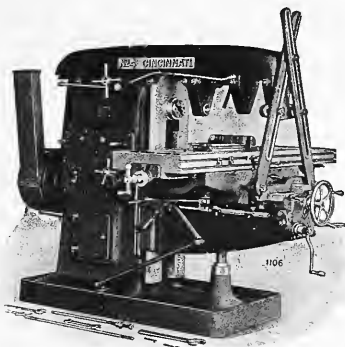

A BIG and interesting world awaits the conquest of every graduate. Both the technical and human requirements of business are now vastly more complicated—and, therefore, more interesting—than they ever were before in the world's history. That is why business is steadily drawing to it the best brains, why the talent that formerly went into statecraft and politics now finds satisfaction in business and industry.

No example of modern business is more developed than the telephone industry. It employs more than 200,000 persons—thousands of whom are college graduates working in its scientific departments. An equal number of those who have won degrees find profitable and interesting employment in its business departments. These people have made the American Telephone System the greatest in the world.

Service to Mankind

THE most lasting and the broadest success of any institution must be based upon service to mankind. There is no field in which a greater service is rendered to humanity than in the collection, preparation and distribution of medicinal preparations for the cure of the sick and for the relief of the suffering.

This service has been most acceptably rendered year in and year out for 96 years by The Wm. S. Merrell Company.

Such service is at the command of physicians who specify Merrell preparations when prescribing. These preparations represent the best possible form of drugs from which they are made.

The Year 1924 is a noteworthy one for the Stuart Walker Company.

for it has proved the success of an undertaking that a year ago was problematical, and two years ago was decidedly a gamble. Stuart Walker, a native of Cincinnati and a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, believed that the people of his home town would appreciate and would lend their support to a presentation of worthwhile drama by capable and polished actors. The risk wasn't so great, however, for after all, Mr. Walker knew Cincinnati and Cincinnatians, and the wonderful and enthusiastic support and patronage that his company is enjoying here this season more than justifies any risks incurred by Mr. Walker in giving to Cincinnati a season of repertoire that more than compares with the theatrical season that New York enjoys during the winter. From its obscure position two years ago the Stuart Walker Company has come to be recognized as one of the most important factors in the dramatic, social, artistic and civic life of Cincinnati.

The leading members of the Stuart Walker Company are almost without exception actors with authentic New York reputations, and most of them have been with the company for many seasons. The spirit of their acting is very rare in the English-speaking theatre, because few English-speaking companies play together for any length of time. To achieve a good musical ensemble in a symphony orchestra it is necessary for the players to be together for many seasons. The same is true of a theatrical company, which fact has been proved by the Russian Art Theatre Company in New York. The members of the Stuart Walker Company play well together because they have been together for many seasons.

The plays for this season are among the big successes of the past seasons in New York and London. Many of them are new to Cincinnati and several of them will be played for the first time on any stage. In addition the company hopes to present several spectacular plays, one or two of the big plays of the English theatre, and some special matinees of plays for children.

TOUCH-DOWN!

THE CRASH of the lines—the half-back knifes through—the goal posts beckon—but tacklers threaten still.

That's the time for interference—for the diving smash that crumples the would-be tackler, and clears the field for the flashing runner with the ball. The stands rock with the shout of victory. Touchdown!

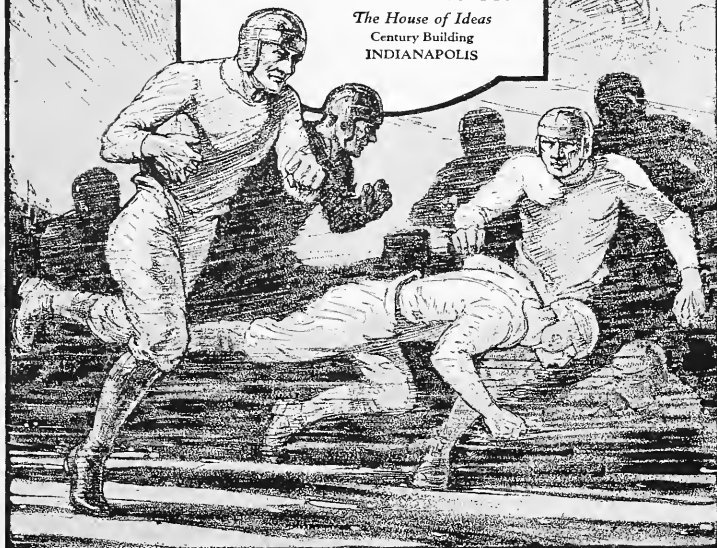

Election to the annual staff is only reaching the line of scrimmage. Your task has just begun. Burly figures stud the field to trip you, smother you, drag you down. Problems, tangles, discouragements!—but the goal can be reached—if you have good interference.

That's our job. You take the ball—we'll take out the tacklers. And we'll stay with you till the last white line is crossed and the crowd is hitching your name to a booming skyrocket.

Put Stafford on the team. Call 'em, quarterback. Let's go.

Ten Thousand Salesmen

EACH with a message from your house—each circulating convincing arguments on the merits of your product—each representing the principles and ideals of your organization.

The printed salesman is a conscientious representative. He is always on the job, at times calculated to bring results, and, above all, he has access to the man who is hard to see—that “much-sought-for” man who has the power to buy.

Direct-mail advertising, as planned, written and printed by us, has been eminently successful, judging from the returns reported by the long list of clients we serve.

Intensified direct-mail effort is stimulating the selling power of many and various products. Applied to your product, we predict a surprisingly favorable reaction.

Call one of our service men in for a few words about advertising. We talk quietly of accomplishments.
